Liability insurance

Liability insurance is not mandatory in Germany but highly recommended and more and more student residences are requesting it.

Liability insurance in Germany protects you in case of unintentional damage to a person or entity or their belongings. In Germany it is very normal that in case of damage or accident, you are sued and the expenses are high.

If you already have a personal liability insurance in your home country, you should check whether it covers your long-term stay in Germany.

Recycling in Heilbronn

Recycling has become a fundamental practice in modern society, as it contributes significantly to environmental conservation and the care of our natural resources.

In the city of Heilbronn, containers are provided for the following types of waste: residual waste, organic waste, waste paper/cardboard, and light-weight packaging. Bins for residual and organic waste require registration and incur charges. In contrast, using bins for waste paper/cardboard and light-weight packaging is voluntary and free of charge.

Every household in the Heilbronn district can register bulky waste free of charge once a year. This includes household items that are too large to fit in the regular garbage can and could be taken away when moving. Normal household quantities of scrap metal and large electrical appliances can also be added. The waste disposal guide for the city of Heilbronn is available here.

The city of Heilbronn also has the Heilbronn waste app, which can be used to quickly and easily display waste collection dates for your own address.

Administrative matters

Residence registration

All citizens of every nationality are obliged to register within a short period of time once they have a fixed residence in Germany. It is important that you bring your ID or passport and a confirmation letter from your landlord ("Wohnungsgeberbestätigung"):

You should repeat this procedure every time you change your place of residence in Germany.

Students from non-EU countries will have to make a second appointment at the immigration office ("Ausländerbehörde") to obtain the residence permit:

For all our new students in Heilbronn, TUM offers exclusive student appointments in cooperation with the Citizens' Registration Office (Einwohnermeldeamt) and the Immigration Office (Ausländerbehörde) in the winter semester. Other deadlines apply to these appointments.

For more information contact the Service Point: servicepoint@chn.tum.de
